The Museion mediators are ready to help the public explore the new exhibition “Here to Stay. New arrivals to the Collection”. The exhibition captures and draws attention to two major clusters within the Museion collection and highlights an intergenerational bridge through over eighty works of art featuring signature installations, sculptures, and media art produced between 2000 and 2010, together with conceptual artworks from the second half of the last century. This selection of works is part of an ongoing effort to cement Museion’s future collection research and public/private partnership.

Participation is free and there is no need to make a reservation
