

OUR FREE THURSDAY GUIDED TOURS AND OUR CONVERSATIONS ABOUT ART BEGIN AGAIN

From Thursday 6th at 7pm free in-person guided tours begin again at Museion.

After months of being closed, the public can therefore go back to enjoying a first-hand experience of visual art. The tours will introduce visitors to the new exhibition “Here to stay” that features over eighty artworks, including installations, sculptures and media works - all of which come from the Museion and are either gifts or long-term loans. There are also special focuses on the work of artists from the New Writing Archive (Archivio di Nuova Scrittura or ANS) like Berty Skuber and Franco Vaccari. Displaying their works alongside those of a generation of artists from the 2000s, “Here to Stay” underlines their historic role in paving the way to a new concept of the artistic object and the experience of art as extending beyond the walls of a museum building.

The visits, held in Italian and German, will be limited to a group of a maximum of ten participants. Reservations are required and can be made by contacting visitorservices@museion.it or calling 0471 223413 during Museion opening times.

No reservations are required for our “Conversations about Art”, that will start again every Saturday and Sunday from 2 to 6pm, starting from Saturday 8th May. By talking to Museion mediators, the public can explore the issues involved in the exhibitions, ask questions and exchange opinions about contemporary art in general.
